FOREVER BELL BOTTOMS AND HOT PANTS

The Ansel chair will have you wondering whatever happened to that furry vest you (or some eccentric relative) donned in the '70s. This Mitchell Gold and Bob Williams Scandinavian-style metal Windsor chair feels vintage and modern all at once. Its Tibetan lamb's wool seat is a nod to '70s fashion and will up the fun factor in any space. $1,296 elte.com

"The details are not the details. They make the design."

CHARLES EAMES

Making an entrance

"Fashion is architecture. It is a matter of proportions," said Coco Chanel. The details in the Coco lever handle in antique bronze by HAUTE DECO with plush quilted pattern was designed in homage to 20th century's most influential fashion designer. Style does open doors. Coco would be pleased.

TOKYO ROSE

The Tokyo pillow by Alexandra D. Foster is inspired by the beauty and delicacy of Japanese flowers. This design was painstakingly created by cutting a stencil by hand, taking over five hours to complete. The result is a stunning and intricate design brought to life by bold colour combinations.

The cushions are all handmade near Lake Como in Italy, 100 per cent silk and original in design. alexandradfoster.com

VIVE LA FRAGRANCE!

Evoking memories of French countryside, Annie Sloan has launched a home fragrance line—six fragrances that have been inspired by historic French locations. R&D's pick for summer? Provence, naturellement. The scent is said to stimulate tranquil scenes of lavender and geranium swaying in the breeze, with hints of ginger and amber undertones to create a refreshing and summery sensory journey. Candles start at $39.95 and Diffusers start at $52. anniesloan.com

CITIZENS OF THE WORLD

Designed by a small, family-run workshop in South Africa, these plates capture the magnificence of the world's greatest landmarks. Crafted by hand, artisans hand stamp the stoneware with original illustrations of architectural icons, then embellish each piece with hand-brushed sepia-tone shading. $59, available at Restoration Hardware rh.com
